Ike Expects March 'Pickup'

President Concerned Over Jobless

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP)—President Eisenhower, in an optimistic statement on the economic situation, said today that March should mark the beginning of the end of the downturn.

From other quarters, however, came predictions that the situation will get worse before it gets better. Some economists expressed doubts that the upturn will come as quickly as the administration believes.

Eisenhower expressed concern over joblessness, which rose to 4½ million in January, and over the shorter work week in effect in some industries. He said he believed "we have had most of our bad news on the unemployment front."

"I am convinced that we are not facing a prolonged downswing in activity," he added. "Every indication is that March will see the start of a pickup in job opportunities."

Fact Paper
The President issued what he called a fact paper showing what the government is doing to foster economic recovery. He listed public works projects and highways programs, new defense contracts, housing aids and softer credit policies.

As one means of improving the economy, Eisenhower unveiled Tuesday a two-billion-dollar program for modernization of post office buildings and equipment during the next three to five years.

Postmaster General Summerfield outlined the plan today to the Senate Post Office Committee where some Democrats criticized it as inadequate to stimulate the economy.

Private capital would finance about 75 percent of the program, under the administration's plan, and the government's proposed contribution of 175 million dollars a year would be contingent on congressional approval of a five-cent rate for intercity first-class mail.

Summerfield told the senators that the primary responsibility for combating crime and for educating children rests with the home and church working together.

He cited examples of chaos in time of Abraham Lincoln which, he said, are similar to those we have today. He indicated that Lincoln was a man who took the simple approach and looked into and tried to find the basis for problems before using simple "country psychology" to work the answers out. Lincoln made very few "quick decisions," he said.

With freedom of education and religion, the U.S. has grown great, he said, and "no one should condemn or try to destroy the Democratic form of government." Communism, however, he said, has made tremendous "roads" into life in the U.S. and the world as a whole since it started 41 years ago.

Highlight of yesterday's program was the presentation of a complete set of the Encyclopedia Britannica to the school. It was a gift from the National Exchange Club as part of its annual Crime Prevention Week program.

The books were presented by Larry Schoenerberger, president of Exchange Club of East Stroudsburg, in behalf of Exchange.

In accepting the gift, Tunis E. Banks, principal of the school and Rev. William R. Bornstein, pastor of the Seventh Day Adventist Church locally, expressed deep gratitude to Exchange for the books and to Sen. Scott for his message to the children and parents.

Q—Why not in those areas, too?

Because I doubt that they would carry with them the stigma of Federal control. Any aid given in other forms—to school construction, for example—might.

Q—There has been a lot of talk about lengthening the school year and the number of hours in the school day. How do you feel?

A—I don't believe there's any reason to make the school year longer—for students, at least. At the conference there seemed to be a feeling that adding another five to seven days to the year and earmarking it for "inservice" programs for teachers would be a good idea. I think children can absorb only so much at a time. Sending them to school six hours a day is enough. We have to consider the child's physical as well as his mental abilities.

Q—In the field of higher education (beyond high school) do you feel there is a need for "community colleges" or "junior colleges" which would go a couple of years beyond high school?

A—I think that was suggested by Gov. Leader in his address before the conference. The idea (Please turn to Page Five)

Scott Praises Leader's Educational Conference

By Leonard Randolph

THIS District's State senator—a Republican—said yesterday that he was "tremendously impressed" by Gov. George Leader's education conference in Harrisburg last month.

Sen. William Z. Scott, Lansford, made the comment in an interview with this reporter in Stroudsburg yesterday.

Scott, along with several other legislators, took part in the Harrisburg conference.

He said that he had found the conference "personally valuable from the standpoint of a parent as well as that of a State legislator." Scott is the father of two children—a daughter now in the fourth grade and a son in kindergarten.

The following is a question-and-answer transcript of pertinent sections of the interview.

Q—Sen. Scott, as a member of the legislature, how did you react to Gov. Leader's education conference?

A—Let me say right at the beginning that I approached the conference from a personal background as an attorney and legislator who had no definite foundation in the internal workings of the schools. I was tremendously impressed. It was well-planned and beautifully organized. It gave a consensus on all various levels in education circles and it was a well-rounded meeting. I was particularly enthusiastic about the group I met with. It gave me an insight I'd never had before. When you're in the legislature you don't hear much about anything but the financial problems of the schools.

Q—Did you feel the conference allowed sufficient time for the consideration of the issues outlined?

A—No, I don't think it did. But that was only because—in our group anyway—we got so interested in the problem we were discussing that we never got finished completely before the chairman had to interrupt and direct us into the next question. You've got to remember that the people who were there were giving up their own time and paying their own way, though, and two days is quite awhile under those circumstances.

Q—Do you feel the idea of such conferences is basically sound?

A—I certainly do. And it was an appropriate time to have the conference because an evaluation such as this had been needed for a long time. Bringing people together for a meeting is an excellent way to stimulate their thinking. And you get ideas from individuals which you might not be able to get from them if you waited for them to come in.

Q—What is your attitude toward Federal aid to education?

A—Let me say this. If you have government aid in any area you can expect some form of government control to come with it. I am opposed to Federal control of education except in such areas as scholarships or school lunch programs.

Q—Why not in those areas, too?

Because I doubt that they would carry with them the stigma of Federal control. Any aid given in other forms—to school construction, for example—might.

Investigators Obtain Files From Morse

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP)—

House investigators retrieved three heaps of secret files today from Sen. Morse (D-Ore), who said the documents show the Eisenhower administration is honey-combed with political immorality.

At the same time, the investigating group subpoenaed Dr. Bernard Schwartz, its ousted chief counsel, to testify tomorrow about his charge that a member of the Federal Communications Commission received a money payment in connection with the award of a TV license.

Six Agencies
Schwartz turned what he called his "personal working files" on a six-month investigation over to Morse after Schwartz was fired Monday night by the House subcommittee on legislative oversight, which is looking into the FCC and five other regulatory agencies.

In returning the files to the subcommittee, Morse called for a separate Senate investigation of alleged pressure on the agencies by White House and other high Republican figures, Morse's proposal got no immediate support, however, and the inquiry remained in the House group's hands.

Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex) said he wants the subcommittee to make a "real thorough investigation" and not just do "a lot of pin-pricking."

Plainly smarting over charges by Schwartz and others that powerful interests turned the inquiry into a whitewash, Rayburn said any suggestion he tried to whittle down the investigation "is utterly and viciously false."

Rep. Harris (D-Ark), new chairman of the subcommittee, pledged later after a meeting with Rayburn that he would conduct "the most thorough investigation, insofar as possible, that Capitol Hill has seen."

Chief Target
Harris, singled out by Schwartz as the committee member most anxious to keep the investigation from going very deep, told newsmen: "I feel personally that I now have the greatest challenge of my life. There is need for a real job, a real investigation, and the American people are entitled to know the facts. I announce here and now that I accept the challenge."

Harris also said some subcommittee files in addition to those Morse had appeared to be missing. He added that this matter will be pursued further.

Harris formally took over today the subcommittee chairmanship which Rep. Moulder (D-Mo) resigned in protest against Schwartz's ouster.

Schwartz said yesterday the subcommittee fired him even though it knew he had evidence of a payoff in a TV case. Several members of the group denied having any such information, and Schwartz was served with a subpoena this afternoon in an effort to make him explain his charge.

Vote Decides Issue

The district attorney said he called pastors from a Protestant and a Catholic parish in the boroughs, and the rabbi from the local Jewish synagogue. Six persons were named by those representatives of the clergy, he said.

Nine other persons came from among law enforcement agencies from the community, Hansen said. The committee of 15 went to the first show at 7 p.m. yesterday.

Superior Court To Rule On Railroad Case

IS A STATE utilities commission within its Constitutional rights when it attempts to regulate railroad passenger service running in and through the State?

This was the basic question underlying a hearing before Superior Court Judge Chester H. Rhodes yesterday in Rhodes' chambers in Monroe County Court House.

It is a question of Constitutional Law. Judge Rhodes made it clear yesterday to counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad, the cities of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh and a commuters' group, that a decision on the matter can be made only by the full Superior Court.

He set March 4 in Scranton as the date for the full-dress hearing on a conflict between the PRR and the Pennsylvania Public Utilities Commission. The railroad has announced curtailment of passenger service between New York and Washington by way of Philadelphia and from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh.

PUC Order
The PUC last week ordered the railroad to hold up proposed schedule changes until it has been given time to investigate the move and its possible effect on "public convenience."

Railroad attorney Windsor F. Cousins, Philadelphia, maintained in yesterday's hearing that the PRR denies the legality of the Commission's action on three basic grounds: 1—that the PUC has not had a hearing on the matter; 2—that the PUC has no statutory authority and 3—that the PUC cannot "in any instance interfere with interstate commerce."

Lined up against these contentions were the arguments of David Berger, Philadelphia city solicitor; Edward Munce, Harrisburg, PUC attorney; Albert Brandon, counsel for Joseph A. Goney and Commuters of Pittsburgh and Meade J. Mulvihill, Jr., Pittsburgh assistant city solicitor.

Berger noted that in a previous case (when the PRR cut passenger service by 30 percent) "we secured an injunction to prevent the cut. But we only had it about two hours when they took it to the Court of Appeals and the court threw it out. They said the case belonged before the Interstate Commerce Commission. But the ICC also threw it out and told us to take the case to the State PUC where it belonged."

The Philadelphia city solicitor told Judge Rhodes that his city is joined in protest against the proposed PRR changes "by the cities of New York, Pittsburgh and Baltimore." He charged, also, that the railroad had not followed an orderly process of law in making the schedule changes.

Interviews
"I knew nothing about all this until newsmen interviewed and questioned me on the matter. The City of Philadelphia was given no notice of it," Berger said. "The railroad has said its cuts amount to only five percent. I dispute that. We're having rate hearings right now with the PRR and they maintain they're making money on passenger service. They want to make more money. They want to back people up on the trains they run and make them stand at the rear."

The railroad erred in not securing the permission of the (Please turn to Page Two)

18 Degrees Below Zero Reported In Monroe Area

UNOFFICIAL temperatures as low as 18 degrees below zero were reported in Monroe County and surrounding areas yesterday as winter's worst cold wave continued.

The 18 below reading was at Mink's Pond in the Bushkill area. Bushkill itself reported temperatures ranging from eight to 10 below.

At Effort, unofficial figures showed 12 below zero, while Newfoundland and Pocono Summit both reported 10 below about 7 a.m.

Surrounding Areas
At Buck Hill Falls, temperatures remained above zero with the lowest unofficial reading being six above. Surrounding areas, however, reported eight degrees below zero.

Areas surrounding Shawneetown-Delaware reported 10 below, while around zero temperatures were reported at Pocono Lake and Scotrun.

Official lows for the day at Mount Pocono and Stroudsburg were three above zero and minus nine degrees respectively, U. S. Weather Bureau observers reported.

Doctor Is Accused

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Feb. 12 (AP)—Dr. Mahlon C. Hinebaugh Jr., 55, of Wynnewood, was held in $1,000 bail for court today on charges of violating the state antinarcotics act.

State Policeman Thomas F. Cullen told Magistrate Charles G. Gorman that the physician used his prescription privilege to get drugs for his own use. He said the doctor had 40 narcotics prescriptions filled at drugstores in Ardmore, Haverford and Bryn Mawr—all Philadelphia Main Line suburban communities near Wynnewood—between January and September of last year.

Constitutional Law Major Question In Pennsylvania Railroad Scheduling Case

PUC before it made the schedule changes, Berger said "and they cannot maintain that they had permission simply because they gave secret notice to the PUC." Counsel for the other groups opposing the railroad agreed with Berger on this point.

"The railroads, in an effort to get out of passenger service completely, are doing everything within their power to abandon such service. Their purpose is to discourage people from using trains for passenger travel," Berger said.

Attorneys opposing the railroad at the hearing contended that "the law appears to say that the State utility commission has jurisdiction in cases involving passenger service" even though the trains pass from one state to another through a third state.

PUC counsel Muncie pointed out that "if the PUC had ordered the railroad to initiate new service there would be some justification for its plea that it does not have time. But the PUC is only ordering the railroad to maintain the status quo—to run the same trains it has been running up to now—until the PUC has had time to investigate the issue thoroughly. There is no violation of due process here."

New Timetables
Railroad counsel Cousins said that the PRR has already had new timetables printed "at a cost of $35,000" and "they have been distributed all over the country."

Judge Rhodes, at one point, asked Cousins how much passenger business had declined. Cousins replied that "last year there was a 20 to 25 percent loss of such traffic on the Pennsylvania and it's going down every day."

At another point, the jurist remarked to Muncie and Berger: "What bothers me is the constitutional phase of this proceeding. You're attempting to control traffic service through Pennsylvania.

The two attorneys and the judge then became involved in a discussion of the meaning of the word "through." Berger pointed out that, so far as the City of Philadelphia's purposes were concerned, the word needed to mean only "from one boundary of the State to another" and not across the State line.

Said Judge Rhodes: "It would seem to me this makes a rather anomalous position, if a railroad in running through several States it could mean it is subject to the jurisdiction of two or three State commissions. It seems to me the management of the railroad has to have some discretion in making its schedules. In this case we may have the opportunity to clarify the law on several major points."

Pilgrims Mark Anniversary

LOURDES, France, Feb. 12 (AP)—Pope Plus XII, speaking by radio from the Vatican, led 60,000 pilgrims in prayer today to mark the 100th anniversary of the day the Roman Catholic Church says the Virgin Mary appeared to 14-year-old Bernadette Soubirous.

The pilgrims—some on cots, some in wheel chairs and the rest kneeling—came from all over the world to join Pierre Cardinal Gerlier, primate of Gaul, and 20 bishops and archbishops in day-long services.

Knights Plan Open House In March

BANGOR—Plans for an open house in March were discussed at a meeting of Father DeNisco Council 3862, Knights of Columbus, in Our Lady of Good Counsel Church hall Tuesday night.

The exact date will be selected later. Joseph Bucher and Joseph Povlette were named co-chairmen for the annual convention breakfast.

Jules Falcone of Easton, district representative of the Social Security Administration, was the speaker.

Youthful Violence

Decent Americans are naturally outraged at the violence which attends so many juvenile offenses. The story of youthful terror is no longer new to us, yet we are shocked again and again as fresh episodes unfold.

Two recent incidents provide sample highlights. A 19-year-old went on a killing rampage in Nebraska. And in New York, a Brooklyn high school principal, caught in a crossfire of pressures after a flurry of violent crime among his students, jumped to his death from his apartment roof.

Threading through accounts of these and many other explosive juvenile outbreaks, one is struck by certain things which seem to get less attention than they deserve.

For one, the resort to violence by youthful offenders is so often drastically out of proportion to the alleged excuse for it. You can get a knife and a beating for smiling the wrong way, uttering an answer a kid doesn't like, or just doing nothing at all.

So explosive are many of our teenage offenders that in countless places the mere threat of violence is enough to strike terror. This is the second aspect that merits attention.

Again and again, we learn that youthful outbreaks are not met by counter-measures but by fearful silence. The constant refrain: "Don't say anything or they'll do something worse."

This petty blackmail or threatened violence is practiced by delinquent youngsters with shattering effect, in big towns and small. Few dare to challenge the menace of the strong-armed reprisal.

Obviously, long-range solutions lie in getting, somehow, at the root causes of this explosive violence. But while we are searching, we have got to find ways of countering it. To yield totally to fear is simply to give terror free rein.

Are You Fit To Drive?

You may have a good driving safety record and feel you are in excellent health. Even so, there are circumstances under which you're not fit to drive.

That finding comes from the American Medical Assn. and is elaborated in a new pamphlet. Here are some of the things that make a driver dangerous:

Emotional upsets. If you can't keep your mind on the wheel and off your worries, you shouldn't be behind the wheel.

Driver's attitude. Some drivers feel the other fellow is always wrong; some are aggressive and intolerant. They need to grow-up—to become mature.

Sleepiness. Dozing is not restricted to night driving. On long trips the driver should rest every two hours and drink coffee or cola to stay alert.

Medicines. Some medicines, including sedatives, tranquilizers, cold tablets, etc., may dull reflexes or impair co-ordination. Stimulants may make a person nervous. Consult your doctor about the side effect of drugs.

Other hazards listed in the AMA pamphlet include faulty vision, certain nerve and heart disorders, diabetes, old age—and, of course, drinking. All of these conditions can result in special hazards—all require preventive measures. It's a case where knowing ourselves and acting accordingly could produce a heartening drop in highway carnage.

Robert S. Allen Reports . . .

Alien Property Wrangle

Washington, Feb. 12 — A new wrangle is again disrupting the Administration's long-pending plan to return hundreds of millions of dollars of German and Japanese assets confiscated during World War II.

Last Fall, President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles promised Chancellor Adenauer to recommend such legislation for enactment at this session of Congress. But so far they have gotten nowhere, due to the vigorous opposition of two high officials to key features of the State Department's backstage proposal.

Budget Director Percival Brundage and Assistant Attorney General Dallas Townsend, head of the Alien Property Office, are strongly objecting to the following:

Tapping the U. S. Treasury for $125,000,000 to pay alien property claims, virtually all of them in Germany.

Allowing the German and Japanese governments to handle the distribution of these and other funds totaling more than $275,000,000.

As a result of the deadlock over these major differences, they are being put up directly to the President. His decision will determine the kind of proposal that will be submitted to Congress.

This unusual inner council clash occurred at a White House conference on this legislation, which has been simmering for years. It is among the most actively lobbied in Congress, with a number of former senators and representatives in the forefront in that.

Also participating in this White House meeting were Assistant Secretary of State Douglas Dillon, principal author of the controversial proposal, and Edward McCabe and Henry McPhee, assistant special counsels to the President.

In addition to the proposed $125,000,000 grant from the Treasury, the following funds are also involved in this problem:

Reserve account in Alien Property Office $179,200,000
Balance in APO . . . $2,800,000
Miscellaneous receipts . . . $267,600,000

Secret details — As presented to the conferees by Dillon, the main provisions of the State Department's formula for settling the alien property issue are:

U. S. citizens to receive up to $10,000 on all war damage claims against Germany and Japan. Estimated cost — $50,000,000.

Up to $10,000 to be paid to all German and Japanese claimants of confiscated property. Estimated cost — $60,000,000.

A pool of $225,000,000 to be set up, by taking $100,000,000 from the Alien Property Office and $125,000,000 from the Treasury, for the purpose of making payments to former German owners of seized property and American claimants against Germany. Japan is excluded from this provision.

State Department to be empowered to negotiate agreements with Germany and Japan for them to handle distribution of returned assets and funds.

Assistant Secretary Dillon insisted this plan "is directly responsive to the desires expressed by the President to Chancellor Adenauer." On this view he was supported by Assistant special White House counsels McCabe and McPhee.

But Budget Director Brundage and Assistant Attorney General Townsend challenged that.

Brundage pointed out the proposal to appropriate $125,000,000 from the Treasury is squarely counter to the President's ban against seeking new funds except for defense and emergency measures. The Budget Director contended he could not approve the proposed huge grant for alien property settlement as that "would completely undermine my position on many other demands for new money, which we are refusing."

Townsend was equally critical of the proposal for Germany and Japan to administer refunding payments. He sternly warned against "possible scandals" and urged this matter be put in the hands of a U. S. agency.

To these dissents Dillon argued: (1) The State Department's measure is the "best that could be worked out"; (2) Japan and Germany will accept it; (3) he is confident a majority of the Senate Judiciary Committee and the House Interstate & Foreign Commerce Committee will approve it; (4) further delay in submitting a plan to Congress may result in no action there at all this year.

"This problem has been pending long enough," asserted Dillon. "It is time it was settled and gotten rid of once and for all. This is not a new appropriation as it has been sought before."

"And it was rejected by the Budget Bureau, too," said Brundage. "This proposal is not in accord with the policy laid down by the President, and until he directs otherwise, I can not approve it."

And on this impasse the conference ended after two hours of wrangling. What happens next remains to be seen.

Mailman's Troubles

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Aggravating Relations

Nikita Khrushchev, in his address before the Supreme Soviet in December, 1957, said:

"The victory of a social order will be solved not by rockets, nor by atomic or hydrogen bombs, but by the social order which insures more material and spiritual good for humanity. We consider that the socialist order is the highest form of organization of the society. Let any system of social order show its advantages not only in military, but in peaceful fields in the development of the productive forces of society, science, technology, culture — in the creation of better living conditions."

His assumption apparently is that Soviet Russia has some kind of an advantage over the Western world in human progress. This is yet to be established by factual data. Despite remarkable progress in some fields, the United States is far ahead of Soviet Russia in productive output; West Germany has made as great progress as Soviet Russia in spite of almost insurmountable handicaps. Surely no comparison is possible of normal living conditions, even for the agricultural population, between the United States and Soviet Russia.

When, however, Khrushchev states the following, he not only does not tell the truth, but he knows that he does not tell the truth. He deliberately and cold-bloodedly lies. This is what Khrushchev said in that speech:

"The Soviet Union and other socialist countries do not threaten anyone with war. They have no intention of forcing their own ideology or methods on anyone. The only thing they propose is peace and friendship between peoples. We want to strive for mutual understanding, we want to establish trust between states, put an end to the fanning of war passions and introduce peace, to give the people the opportunity to work in peace."

"This is obvious. However, we are told that this is propaganda! Yes, it is propaganda, but not for war but for peace, because in the Soviet Union, as distinct from the United States, for instance, propaganda for war is considered a grave crime and is punished by law."

For 40 years, since 1917, Soviet Russia has conducted a world wide propaganda to bring other nations within the Soviet Universal State. To accomplish this end, Soviet Russia has conquered some 17 countries; it has made war on Finland and China; it has broken treaties and agreements; it has subsidized civil wars and rebellions; it has frightened politicians by the activities of Kremlin-controlled political parties within their national boundaries; it has infiltrated into so-called friendly governments, even allies in time of war, by the employment of native sons and daughters against their fatherlands.

The history of the Communist Party from 1903 to 1958 is one of continuous conspiracy and outrageous betrayal of friend and ally. One need only read this passage in Chiang Kai-shek's book, "Soviet Russia in China," to realize what a horribly treacherous nation this is. Chiang says:

"... The so-called 'cooperation for joint resistance against Japan' was nothing but a slogan for this strategic defense. On the other hand, the 'people's front' they then organized was a kind of isolationist device used to support their neutralist tactics through the 'Anti-Japanese National Salvation Association' in an attack on the Government."

"While asking for cooperation to resist Japan, the Chinese Communists insulted and abused the Government by branding it as 'Fascist' and 'anti-Japanese.' This campaign caused our country and our Government a considerable loss in prestige but opened up for the Communists vast possibilities for political expansion. So, in this particular instance, the Chinese Communists' 'peaceful coexistence' was a strategic defense and a tactical offense."

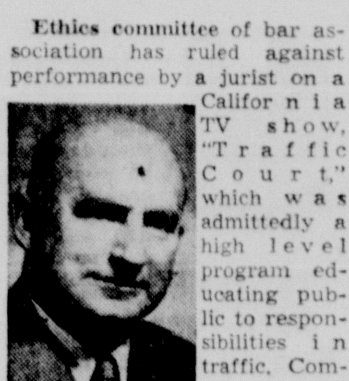

I have watched this party closely for more than 40 years, as closely as one can without becoming a member of it, and must denounce it as a plague upon the human race. Chiang was once friendly with the Communists. It took him years to learn this:

"... they sought to shatter our strength by using 'peaceful coexistence' as a strategic weapon to tie the hands of the Government troops and at the same time to facilitate their own attacks. In point of tactics, however, they remained on the defensive and shaped their demands accordingly."

"They only talked of 'peace.' They said they wanted 'democracy.' They claimed that all they asked was that political parties should have the armed forces and schools. . . . Therefore, the Communists' peace talks during this particular phase were a strategic offense and tactical defense."

The Once Over

by H. I. Phillips

It is unethical and throws stop light on the judge. This looks like reaching far back for an unethical practice in a day when courts, lawyers, doctors, legislators and others in professional life seem almost routine TV stars. Nevertheless the trend can go too far. Judges and attorneys have been popping out all over the TV screens. Bar Association fear a day when lawyers may spring programs called "Have Bench; Will Travel," and "Wyatt Blackstone."

California jurist gave his TV pay to Legal Aid Society. It was $49.50 per week. Which shows the judge was no judge of TV wages. (TV Ethical Committee could bar him for unethical regard for amusement world salary standards.) Bar association attitude may be all for best, as TV temptation is great and we might soon be seeing jurists rated for ad libbing, airwave personalities and Joe Miller routines. Unchecked the trend could mean a vogue for judges who sing "Catch A Falling Star" and enthusiastically plug a magazine which carries their picture on the cover with Jayne Mansfield.

Courts are the last refuge of dignity. Up to now they have not been linked into old fashion vaudeville or Corset Payton drama motifs. You could look at almost any jurist in his black robes and feel fairly certain he was not a hooper at heart or a fellow who wanted to be an acrobat, magician or courtroom Bob Hope. A judge might not always be an ornament to a bench, but he knew he was not sitting on a TV panel, highly dependent on a TV daily rating.

Pennsylvania Dutch Column

Give Heart Fund Valentine

Three St. Valentines, each associated with Feb. 14, are mentioned in the historical record of martyrs. One is described as a priest of Rome, another as Bishop of Interamna. Flaminian Gate, called Gate of St. Valentine, from the name of a nearby church, was dedicated to a saint, of whom little is known.

Theories differ on how Valentine became associated with a day on which lovers send affectionate tokens to each other. Europeans of the middle ages advanced the belief that birds sought a mate on Feb. 14. Another opinion suggests a lover of women and the name of a saint.

Regardless of origin, the cardinal red, the dove white and the sentiments exchanged with valentines are heart touching.

The early Pennsylvania Dutch conceived elaborately colored and finely detailed hearts, doves, other birds and flowers on paper and cloth. Some of the detail found its way to birth certificates and other religious inscriptions. Much authentic Pennsylvania Dutch furniture carries floor covering and draperies carry designs that originated in a valentine.

With the establishment of postoffices, the mails were flooded with valentines of every description. Many were coarse, vulgar and slanderous. Early in this century the Chicago postoffice rejected 25,000 valentines on the ground that they were not fit to enter the mail.

Today, stores offer for sale and kindergartens teach how to make gift cupids, red hearts, white doves, colored birds, butterflies and characters from plays of Shakespeare. Slander and other filth in connection with Valentine's Day has almost been eliminated.

In Monroe County the torch of hope for every heart is brilliantly lighted with the acceptance of the heart challenge by the Monroe County Medical Society, under the leadership to Dr. Charles H. Rushmore. The heart drive's wise choice of Frank Lanterman as lay director adds momentum to what has already progressed beyond our realization.

All of the local men and women of medicine are capable of reflecting in understandable language the hopeful optimism that ultimately will eliminate the shadow of despair previously associated with cardiac conditions. The heart moving pictures and the question and answer forum that follows between layman and doctor is worth the price of the best movie. And, it's all free. Don't miss an opportunity for seeing—the movie.

A Valentine For Dr. Philip F. Ehrig

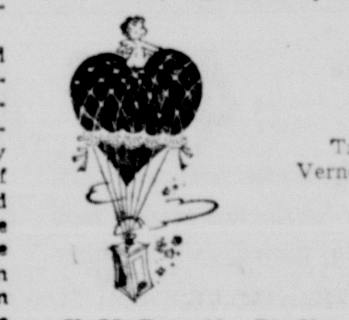

Let a valentine for the heart nearest and dearest to you have the complexion of Irish green. A silver piece, even a penny, will be helpful, but inadequate for the accomplishment of the goal. Giving help is contagious. One of the green colored bank notes in your wallet will reflect real affection through the plastic red heart depositories so prominently displayed everywhere. If you are a shut-in, mail a green valentine to Hart, c/o your Postoffice. In the absence of cash, send a check, written in dollars. (Plural).

On Tuesday of this week I was speaking with one of these outdoor workers. He promptly told me that they had a secret for keeping warm and that tears weren't necessary.

The big secret? Insulated underwear.

Yep, that's what the man said. Although he quickly pointed out that insulated boots, heavy shirts, a couple pairs of pants, a hat with ear flaps and a parka over everything also came in handy.

But, insulated underwear was the basis for all past, future and present success against frigid temperatures.

This underwear can be any color, just so it has plenty of arm and leg lengths. Style doesn't mean a thing. Just let it come up high around the neck and present the needed warmth.

There had to be some secret to withstand the Winter's hardest blow that has hung over the Pocono Mountains since Sunday.

Unofficial readings of 30 below zero, minus 28 and 24 below, all within the boundaries of Monroe County, brought back memories of yesteryear for residents of the area.

As for me? I remember an unofficial reading of 34 below zero at Pocono Manor sometime around 1940. I would tell you the exact year except my memory was frozen during that sub-zero snap.

Our latest "freeze" and heavy snow came just when the old timers were telling the young folks about these parts that we just don't know what the word "Winter" means any more.

Before the older generation could say, "Why I remember could," we were buried under 11 inches of snow and the mercury in the thermometer was dropping like a runaway elevator.

Now, these older folks are reminding one and all that there's nothing to worry about as Spring is just around the corner. The fact that today is February 13, not Friday, but Thursday, is more reassuring than one might expect on the surface.

How would you like to be snoozing on the beach in the Bahamas, dreaming of those poor snowbound people up north?

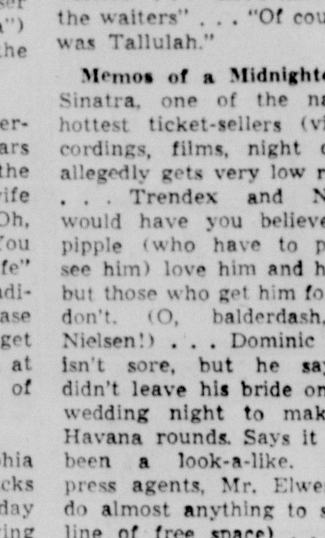

We common folks will have to be content with dreaming about those people in the Bahamas dreaming about us.

A nightmare? I guess you're right.

A chap who loved his weekend golf was laid low by an attack of gripe. After a fortnight, he was all set to resume play, when he suffered a relapse. "Why can't you play this time?" grumbled his constant opponent on the links. "Let me put it this way," said the stricken one glumly. "My trouble is an overlapping gripe."

"When we speak of the Seven Seas," proposed the professor, "let us be specific." "Okay," agreed a fresh Frosh. "You be specific, and I'll be Atlantic."

A Harvard business school statistician estimates there are 90,000 hairs on the average redhead and over 150,000 on blondes. In other words, the chances of a careless Lothario getting a blond hair on his coat lapel are almost twice as great as coming up with a redhead's.

E. F. Groner Debunks Idea On Scientists

EARL F. GRONER, superintendent of Stroud Union Schools, yesterday debunked the belief current among many people that the United States is not training scientists equal to those in Russia.

Despite great Soviet strides in the development of missiles, he refused to sell our scientists short and declared that American colleges and universities have graduated large numbers of capable scientists in the last 15 years.

A main difference between this country and Russia is that our graduates are receiving—and accepting—well-paying offers from private industry and are turning their attention to developing civilian goods.

Armed Services

As a result, Groner told the Stroudsburg Kiwanis Club, very few scientists are entering the armed services and taking part in the missile research program.

The opposite is true in Russia; while we have spread our scientists in many civilian fields, those in the Soviet Union are concentrated in the military.

Groner said Russia did us a favor when it sent its Sputniks into outer space, because this achievement served to jolt America out of its complacent and self-satisfied way of life.

Out of this awakening has come a reassessment of our educational system and a demand for the teaching of more science, mathematics and allied subjects in our schools.

The speaker referred to the Governor's Conference on Education as a sincere approach to solving the educational problems of this age. Originally composed of 100 persons, the conference grew to 301 members, of whom 291 attended the Jan. 27-28-29 educational convention in Harrisburg.

Supported by a tremendous amount of research material provided by the State Department of Public Instruction, the conferees considered 15 major fields of endeavor and came to several conclusions.

Sufficient Number

One of these, Groner said, is that Pennsylvania's schools are lacking a sufficient number of teachers adequately trained, alert and dedicated to their task. One of the reasons for this inadequacy, the conferees felt, is that our colleges of education are spending too much time on theory and not enough on content.

Reading, he predicted, will be a major field of study from first grade through the senior year of high school. Also, more time will be spent on training the talented child.

The better teachers of tomorrow are to be found in the classrooms of today, Groner said. The problem is: how can we make the young people follow and mimic the "jewels" among our present teachers?

For one thing, he answered, we must elevate our respect for teachers and the teaching profession. For another, schools must have the support of the vast majority of our people.

It's going to cost money and take plenty of effort, he said, if we want good sound education. But if we get the public thinking in terms of sound schools, then we will have sound schools, Groner declared.

The speaker was introduced by his father, James H. Groner, program chairman.

Lions Club Plans For Charter Night

THE Stroudsburg Lions Club will celebrate its annual charter night Saturday. It will be the 33rd for the club, the oldest Lions' Club in Monroe County.

There are two charter members who still belong to the club, L. H. "Red" Cross and Walter Von Brock.

This year's affair will be slightly different than previous ones. It will take place out of town at David Duke's Resort in Marshalls Creek; dinner will be served smorgasbord style, and there will be no speeches—just dinner and entertainment.

Joseph McCluskey, president of the club and local chairman of the State Convention Committee, has announced that the entire committee together with the members' guests will be present for the annual dinner.

General Chairman

Arthur J. Henry of Neffs, Pa., is general chairman. In addition to the seven members of the local club, the remainder of this committee consists of Conrad A. Falvello, international director of Hazleton; Woodrow M. Miller, district governor of 14K; Robert F. Miller, sec-treas 14K; Walter Hicks, president of the Northeastern Pennsylvania Lions Eye Bank; Sidney Effross and Ralph Lockard.

The members of the club were entertained Tuesday night by a talk and color slides depicting the DEW (Defense Early Warning) Line. Bob Gearhart, installer-repairman for Bell Telephone Co., made the presentation.

Gearhart spent a year and a half helping to install the 100 to 150 radar warning stations which stretch across Alaska and Canada at about the 71st parallel.

At a board of directors' meeting afterward, it was voted to contribute financially to the Clair Bee Basketball Clinic.

Parents' Committee Visits Clearview School Classes

MOM went "back to school" yesterday at Clearview Elementary.

It was part of a program to show the Parents' Elementary Curriculum Committee of Stroud Union Schools how things really are in classrooms.

Members of the committee visited the classrooms of Mrs. Elmer Sutton, third grade; Thomas Manley, sixth grade; Mrs. Frank Wagner, fifth and Woodrow Berger, sixth.

The program was arranged under the supervision of Roger A. Dunning, Stroud Union elementary supervisor and Ralph Knaut, Clearview principal.

Bangor Council Okays Bids

BANGOR—Bangor Borough Council, at a special meeting last night, authorized Borough Secretary William J. Sleeman to advertise for bids on a heavy duty street truck, upon recommendation of Charles Chamberlain, chairman of the street committee.

Chamberlain reported it would cost between $600 and $700 for repair to the old truck, which has seen eight years of service.

In other action, Council made plans for a special meeting next Monday night in an effort to establish its 1958 budget.

It was reported by Sleeman that as yet the borough has not received the new county assessment figures. Chief Burgess Quintus LaBar warned citizens that unless sidewalks in the borough are cleaned within 24 hours following a storm the borough will take action to prosecute.

Scott Opposes School Control

is good, but it would depend a great deal on whether adequate facilities were available. And on whether you had a large enough number of teachers available. I'm wholeheartedly in favor of seeing that young men and women are able to get advanced education along this line, particularly where finances might prevent them from going on to a college or university.

Q—Is there sufficient emphasis on science and its allied subjects in modern education?

A—Well now, look. I have a child in the fourth grade and one in kindergarten. I don't think I'm qualified to answer that with any authority. This is where I had to listen to the others in my group at the Harrisburg conference—the superintendent from Williamsport and the education professor from Lehigh. It appears from the opinion of others that there is not, however.

Q—What do you feel we should do for the "gifted child?"

A—That was one of the big things at the meeting, of course. There's no question in my mind but that the gifted child should not be held back to the average of the particular classroom in which he happens to find himself. But there are a number of suggested solutions for this. People attending the conference felt that shoving the child into an advanced group might give him a "superiority complex" while those who were kept in the average group might feel "inferior." I don't think any of us would want a child to grow up with either one. Of the suggestions I heard, I think the idea of some kind of grouping—what was it they called it?—that's it—homogeneous grouping, sounds more practical. That's the system where the child would be placed in an advanced group only in those subjects in which he excels. Otherwise he'd have a chance to mature with children of his own age and interests in other fields.

Q—How about the physically or mentally retarded?

A—You probably didn't know it, but you've hit on something close to my heart, there. Back in 1951, Rep. Marcia Markley, from Lehigh County, and I sponsored the first legislation for retarded children's schools in the State. The legislature appropriated $7 million to start the program. The 1955 legislature expanded the program to include physically as well as mentally retarded children—the blind, deaf and paralyzed kids. Mrs. Markley and I later received plaques from the Retarded Children's Association for our work on the bill.

Q—Can we change public attitudes toward teaching as a profession?

A—Are you presuming that the profession is not held in high standing? If you are, I'm not so sure of that. I'm of the opinion that the people in this State hold teachers in high regard.

Of course, there are always a few rotten apples in any group of people—doctors, newspapermen and politicians, anyone else you could name, and they sometimes cause people to take wrong attitudes. By and large, I'm of the opinion teaching is a very honored profession. Salary increases during recent years have helped some in this respect.

Q—Can we do anything to make it a more respected profession as an indispensable part of the society in which we live?

A—I think one of the best ways we can help is through the Parent-Teacher Associations. Or just through parents, themselves, taking an even greater interest in schools and what their children are doing and accomplishing.

Q—Most people appear to feel American education is facing a challenge today. Is the challenge any greater or any different than it was "Before Sputnik?"

A—American education is always being challenged. Sputnik has done nothing more than to point up the fact that it was time for a reappraisal of our education system and to discover whether there were things being taught which were antiquated or we were neglecting other things which should be part of education.

Q—What can we do to meet the challenge of changing needs in education? Are we doing anything, really?

A—I think Gov. Leader has gone a long way toward attempting to meet the challenge we face right now. The conference on instruction was one step—and a very good one. But he has also appointed committees to study other factors in education in the State. The Council of Education has one committee working now on the whole idea of certification for teachers. That seemed to me to be a very important subject, judging from reactions of educators at the January conference. The Governor seems to have recognized the challenge and started doing something about it quite a while ago.

Q—What are your personal impressions of education in Pennsylvania today?

A—I think I'd better answer that one as a member of the Senate. On the whole I'm perfectly satisfied with the educational system in the Commonwealth today. I think it's done a good job. A reappraisal by those who are in a position to make it will probably uncover the fact that there are some needs for a change in curriculum, standards, etc.

Q—What can the legislature do to help things along?

A—I think we have to constantly provide for adequate compensation for teachers and make certain the profession is an attractive and worthwhile vocation for young men and women. But that always brings up another question—meeting the expenses involved—and this, of course, can only be accomplished from taxpayers' dollars. If our citizens want the best possible education for their children, they will have to be willing to pay for it.

Scout Dinner Solemn Occasion

DELAWARE WATER GAP—

The annual Blue and Gold dinner for Cubs and Scouts held here last night was a solemn occasion, rather than the time of gaiety it usually is.

The dinner was dedicated to the memory of Herbert H. Baker, chairman of the Cub Scout committee and a member of the Boy Scout Committee, who died yesterday.

One of Baker's last acts was to assist in decorating the fire hall Tuesday night for the dinner. Mrs. Baker, who did not attend the banquet, was instrumental in securing kitchen help and planning the meal.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker also contributed much of the food which was served.

Place Mats

Place mats for the banquet were made by Dens One and two of Pack 92 and all Cubs cooperated in making napkin slides.

Francis Drake was master of ceremonies and the invocation and benediction were given by Rev. Luther Martin. Robert Hawik led group singing, accompanied by Mrs. Paul Maxwell. N. Harold West of Resica Falls, camp director for the Philadelphia-Valley Forge Area Council, was the principal speaker.

Three new members were inducted into Troop 92. They are Larry Lightner, William Metzger and John Siptroth.

Merit badges were awarded David Chamberlain, William Buzzard and Ralph Wescott, while Cub Scout badges were presented George Kulp and Douglas Jennings.

Introductions

Mrs. Henry Kulp and Mrs. Walter Bryffogle, the only Den mothers able to attend, were introduced.

Reports on Cub activities were given by Charles Dutt, assistant Cubmaster, while Scout activities were reported by William Townsend, scoutmaster.

Roy Wescott gave the troop committee report and Henry Kulp, institutional representative, also spoke briefly.

Put Drama Into Your Stairwell

WHY NOT put drama into your stairwell? A handsome mural may be used to dramatize this area and to hide scars or an old paint job.

One do-it-yourself project transformed an otherwise conventional stairwell into a landscape with hand-painted mural depicting wild ducks alighting on a wooded marsh. The mural of plastic coated wall fabric is easily cleaned.

The same general steps that apply to hanging a wall covering are followed for decorating a stairwell. A working platform should be provided. The easiest way to do this is to place a step ladder on the landing to support one end of a stout plank. The other end rests on the upstairs banister.

Before starting the mural job, decide where the alternate strips of solid ground material will go. A good idea for balance is to alternate the strips — a strip of solid material, a full mural, another strip of solid color and a second full mural.

No Need

There is no need to cut murals because the strips are complete units in themselves, unlike patterned wall paper. Basic steps to follow are:

Establish a vertical straight edge with a plumb line at the point where the mural begins. Spread ordinary wallpaper paste evenly on the back of each strip and affix to the wall, using a stiff brush to eliminate wrinkles.

Be sure the pattern matches as the strips are brushed in place. Wash down with a soft damp cloth or sponge to eliminate excess paste.

The solid color material needed to fill the space between the murals must first be measured and then cut in strips of the required length before it is hung. Strips should be reversed when using a solid color, to assure uniformity.

When using a mural on a staircase it is a good idea to choose a flowing movement of some sort. Avoid static designs.

'Truss Roof' May Save In Expenses

FAMILIES planning to build a new home may find they can get more house for the money by asking their architect or builder for a "truss roof" instead of conventional roof construction.

A truss roof is erected on a bridge-building principal in which tangled supports put the entire weight of the roof on exterior walls. No load bearing partitions are needed.

Truss roof construction saves money in two important ways:

1. They usually are framed with 2x4's instead of more costly 2x6 and 2x8 rafters.
2. With trusses, partition walls don't have to be put in until much of the interior work is completed. An overall floor, for example, can be laid without tedious cutting and fitting around partitions. Wallboard or other drywall finish can be installed all around the interior perimeter at a savings in labor costs. Wiring and plumbing also go faster.

A further advantage is that a truss roof always is a pitched roof. This means an attic space which can be ventilated for more summer comfort, plus an area usable for light storage. Asphalt shingles also can be applied on a pitched roof, giving the home-owner the advantage of a roof in his choice of colors, or in heat-reflecting white.

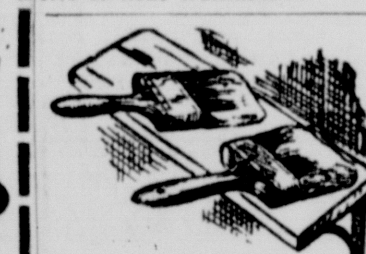

Although truss roofs are most commonly used on one-story houses whose attics are not designed for living space, there is a special type of truss roof construction which allows for an expansion attic.

Three Materials In Insulation

MINERAL wool insulation is made from three principal materials: rock, glass, or slag.

In the manufacturing process, one or more of these raw materials is mixed with coke and heated to a molten state. Jets of steam blow the molten mass into millions of fibers.

The fibers fall naturally into a thick, interwoven mass containing millions of tiny dead-air spaces. These dead-air spaces provide an efficient barrier to heat transmission.

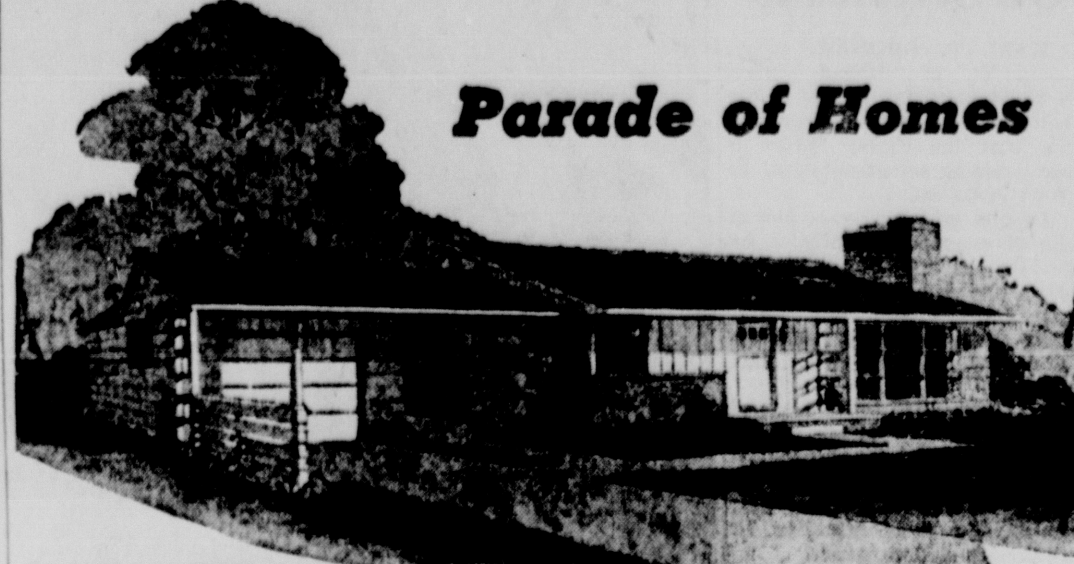

RECLAIM OLD PAINT BRUSHES

Don't discard paint-hardened brushes. Let Imperial go to work on them. No fuss—Imperial is ready to use. Simply place the brush in it and the toughest paint dissolves quickly. Leaves brushes with original spring and liveliness.

Modern House Shows Dual Personality

FOR THOSE who like the "middle-of-the-road" approach whether it is in homes or living — this house shows a dual personality!

Young moderns can make this a contemporary addition to the location of their choice, and yet, the conservative couple will find enough that is contemporary in the exterior to lift it out of the "stodgy" class.

Although the protected front door leads directly into the living-dining area, the dowel type trellis serves as a "break" with guest closet near the front door. Large picture windows, natural fireplace and long, unobstructed wall space makes for a living-dining area of unusual spaciousness in a house this size.

The kitchen is also in the front of the house, with the most popular of all sink arrangements, corner with large windows. There's table space, good work area and convenient doors, one to the breezeway, the other to the central hall for easy traffic to every part of the house and basement.

All three bedrooms are across the back of the house for privacy and convenience. Master bedroom has twin closets and there are large wardrobe closets in each of the other bedrooms. One linen closet is adjacent to bedrooms, the other to the bathroom.

Three Bedrooms

There is also an extra clothes closet in the hall. Bathroom is large and conveniently placed for easy accessibility to all parts of the house.

The breezeway has an attractive trellis treatment and may be screened for further comfort when dining outdoors.

The "man of the house" will appreciate the storage cabinets and workbench situated in the garage.

Repair Of 'Sale Killers' Important To Property

IF YOU plan to sell your home, don't miss a chance for a quick, profitable turnover because of "sale killers," says Andrew C. Lang, author of the new book, "Home Repairs."

"Sale killers," says Lang, are things about a house and lot which can discourage an otherwise enthusiastic prospect.

Here are some common "sale killers" and hints on how to get rid of them:

1. Unkept grounds. You don't have to re-landscape the place, but be sure lawns are neat and shrubbery is trimmed.
2. Broken and cracked concrete work in sidewalks, drives, foundation, garage, or patio. An afternoon spent with a sack of ready-mixed patching cement may save your sale.
3. Peeling or cracked paint on siding and trim. An investment in a complete paint job may pay for itself in a faster, more profitable sale. If the complete job isn't needed, a bit of touching up here and there can accomplish wonders.
4. Shabby, weathered roof. Since this usually is the largest expense visible from outside, an old, worn roof can ruin the exterior appearance of a house. An investment in a new roof of asphalt shingles in a color that complements the rest of the house can pay dividends in the final sale. A new roof also gives you a strong selling point: the new owners will have years of trouble-free security from all kinds of weather.
5. Streaked, faded interior walls and ceilings. A weekend or two with paintbrush and roller is an inexpensive way to cure this "sale killer." Floors and woodwork also may need sprucing up.

Some other things to be ready with after the "For Sale" sign goes up are good housekeeping with a minimum of clutter, an affirmative answer to the prospect's inevitable question, "Are the plumbing, heating, and electric systems in good shape?" and the right answers to questions about transportation, shopping, schools, and taxes.

Repair Insulation

BOILER and pipe insulation can be repaired with asbestos cement which is mixed with water to form a paste and then worked into the openings. Clean the openings first and dampen the edges before applying the cement.

Wax Protects Tools

WIPE tools with waxed paper occasionally. This gives them just enough of a protective coat of wax to keep rust away, and avoids the messiness of oil and the possibility of getting oil stains on wood.

Outlooks Change After Building

WHAT DOES an architect design for his own family? And why? And, after having lived in the house for some time, what changes would he make if he were to build the house over again?

We put these questions to Herman H. York, a prominent eastern architect, who has achieved national prominence for his award-winning residential designs. Here is the story of his house, as he built it two years ago and as he would change it now if he were to redesign it.

First, the architect decided he would want all principal rooms toward the rear for greater privacy and he, therefore, selected a plot with the proper compass direction. He explains:

"This gives the important rooms the most desirable exposure. Orientation varies in different parts of the country. If the plot is large enough, it is sometimes possible to turn the house to whatever exposure is desirable. However, best results are obtained where the plan layout takes into consideration the plot and its compass relationship."

Any house, whether it be a one-story, a split level or a two-story, must be planned for efficient living, York says:

"Good space relationship and proper circulation is the key to a successful plan. In my own house, I realized that as an architect I must include some eye catching ideas, enough unusual detail to create interest for our guests."

"But, basically, the house must be one in which our family could live with the greatest comfort and with the least maintenance."

In his house, York planned three general zone areas:

1. Living.
2. Sleeping.
3. Service.

"There is seldom a problem in separating the living and sleeping areas," the architect says. However, many plans do not have a proper relationship between kitchen and garage, between the kitchen and the dining terrace, and between the living areas and the outdoor terrace.

Fit House To Plot

"Most of us buy a house partly because a plot of ground surrounds it. The house, therefore, should be planned to make utmost use of this outdoor area."

In his house, York gave top consideration to such a circulation pattern and to the relationship between the three general areas.

Design Makes Homes Better

FUNCTIONAL design has made today's homes look better and last longer. A good example of this is a building material is the use of millions of rock granules embedded in the surface of asphalt shingles.

These granules provide color, plus a tough surface which protects the roof from sun and the wearing effect of rain, ice, and snow.

Shellac For Drawers

IF BUREAU drawers have a habit of sticking, coat them with shellac. This will prevent them from absorbing moisture, swelling and sticking.

Stock Market Shows Sixth Straight Drop

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 (AP)—An expression of confidence by President Eisenhower that the economic downturn is about over was followed by a stock market decline today, the sixth in a row.

Because of Lincoln's birthday many financial institutions were closed and stock trading was conducted under semi-holiday conditions. Only 1,107 issues were traded, making today's the narrowest market since last Oct. 3.

The New York Stock Exchange floor appeared normally busy and turnover amounted to 2,030,000 shares compared with 2,110,000 yesterday.

Thanks to the substantial late recovery the overall loss was the smallest of the week. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped 50 cents to $159.50 with the industrials down 60 cents, the rails down 50 cents and the utilities off 10 cents.

A total of 580 stocks declined and 291 rose. New highs for 1957-58 totaled 14 and new lows 13.

Among the 15 most active stocks there was an even split of 7 gainers and 7 losers with 1 unchanged. Royal Dutch again headed the list, off 1/4 at 38 3/4 on 64,000 shares. Second was Rexall, up 1/4 at 11 1/4 on 32,900 shares. Third was Schering, up 1/4 at 37 1/2 on 30,700 shares.

Next came U.S. Steel, up 1/4 at 55 1/2 and Standard Oil (New Jersey), off 1/4 at 49 1/4.

Tobacco and other "defensive" issues did well. Both oils and chemicals were hit hard early in the day but their final prices were not too bad. Gulf Oil lost 1/4, Union Carbide 1/4, Amerada 1/4 and Texas Co. 1/4.

Motion pictures and radio-televisions advanced.

Fractional gains were made by Chrysler, Youngstown Sheet, Radio Corp., Westinghouse Electric and Johns-Manville. Goodyear lost 1/4, Goodrich 1/4, Caterpillar 1/4, Kennecott 1/4 and General Dynamics 1/4.

American Stock Exchange prices declined. Corporate bonds were slightly higher. Because of Lincoln's Birthday, over the counter houses which handle the bulk of trading in U.S. Government bonds, were closed.

Blind Woman Robbed Of $62

ALLENTOWN, Feb. 12 (AP)—A blind woman who operates a candy stand in the Allentown post office today was robbed of $62 by a man who apparently picked up her purse from a table while making a telephone call at the rear of the stand.

Mrs. Alma Reigh operates the stand with her husband, Eugene, also blind.

Dorshimer Funeral Held

BRODHEADSVILLE—Funeral services for Sherman Dorshimer, Kunkletown, RD 2, were held yesterday in the Kresge Funeral Home here.

Rev. G. Robert Booth officiated and burial was in Trachsville Cemetery. Pallbearers were Theodore Bollinger, Earl Murphy, Dewey Scheller and Harry Young.

ber was absent. The business for the past month was taken care of. The following members were present: Rev. E. T. Horn, Morgan Butz, Roy Paul, Clair Miller, George Prosser, Glenn Wallingford, Bill Bond, James Frable, Clair Wallingford. Refreshments were served.

Miss Mary Reimel of Neola, moved from her old homestead into one of Milton Werkheiser's homes here on Saturday. Both farms having been sold.

Mrs. George Prosser spent several days caring for her sister, Mrs. Verdon Rustine.

Bobby Davies of Wind Gap, spent the weekend with his mother, Mrs. Carolyn Davies.

Marie Bonser and Sharon Wallingford spent Wednesday with their schoolmates Shirley and Nancy Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wallingford and Miss Elizabeth Wallingford spent Friday in Allentown. Wayne, employed by Haynes Motors, was enjoying a week's vacation.

Word has been received from Mrs. Gilmour Miller of Allentown, that Gilmour was a patient at the Allentown Hospital with an infected hand.

Miss Kirstie Ruga and friend of East Paterson, N. J., called on Mrs. J. A. Wallingford. Kirstie is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ruga, the Estonian family that arrived here eight years ago sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Jay Stutton. Kirstie reported her parents have gotten in contact with their aged parents in Estonia and her aunt, who had been taken to Sileria before the Rugas fled, is back in Estonia again.

Portland Youth Wins Acquittal

PORTLAND—Charles Francis Gardner, 19, of Portland, Monday was acquitted on an involuntary manslaughter charge in Northampton County Court at Easton.

Judge Clinton Budd Palmer said he had no choice because evidence was insufficient as to whether Gardner was drunk when the accident happened.

Automobile Accident
Gardner had been charged in the death of Alfred E. Reinhardt, 22, of Mount Bethel, in an automobile accident last Sept. 22.

Testimony showed a car driven by Gardner crashed into a tree on Route 611 in Middle Village, just south of the Portland Borough line.

Reinhardt was a passenger in the car. Gardner and another passenger were injured.

Many To File For Benefits

SCORES of self-employed persons in the Easton area will be filing claims for social security benefits during the early part of 1958, according to the Easton social security office.

The local office stated that many self-employed individuals make little or no preparation for this important visit to the social security office to claim their insurance payments under the social security law. Failure to do so often causes the claimant extra trouble and inconvenience, slows down the processing of his claim, and delays the receipt of his first monthly check.

Requirements
The social security office pointed out that a person must meet certain requirements set forth in the law before he can become eligible to draw monthly social security benefits. One of these requirements is that a person who has been working for himself must submit proof that he received at least $400 net earnings from his business during the year, together with proof that he filed a proper tax return with Internal Revenue Service.

To meet this requirement, self-employed individuals who plan to file a claim for social security benefits should have an extra copy of their tax return prepared for the social security office. This will speed up the handling of their claims.

The local office urges all self-employed persons who plan to file claims in the next few months to have extra copies of their 1956 and 1957 tax returns, including Schedule C or F, ready to submit to the social security office when they file their claims for social security benefits.

They should also have some evidence that they filed the tax returns with the District Director of Internal Revenue Service, such as a cancelled check or post office money order receipt.

Preparation for visiting the social security office to file a claim often saves both the claimant and the social security administration time and expense, the social security office stated.

Exchange Name To Be Changed

NEWFOUNDLAND — The change-over from Newfoundland to Orleans telephone numbers in this area will take place Sunday night.

Telephone directories have been distributed in most of the sections affected by the change.

Difficulty
However, difficulty in reaching some of the homes because of the snow was reported by several of the distributors who left the directories with the nearest available neighbor.

Anyone who has not received the new directory may contact the business office in Scranton.

Scouts Plan For Week

BUSHKILL — Scout Troop 78 with scoutmaster Albert Smith, Jr. and assistant scoutmaster Robert S. Minter made preparations for observance of National Boy Scout week. Sixty-three percent of the troop attended Sunday School or Church services last Sunday.

Two patrols have been organized, the Bobwhite patrol with Bruce Butz, leader, Stephen Schoonover, Barry Minter, Larry Garrison, James Lits, Gregory Beam, and the Wolf patrol with Dale Keiper, leader; Donald and George Morris, Adrian Walker, and Ralph Lits.

A display of scouting has been placed in the show window at Turn's General Store. Two members of each patrol worked in preparing the display.

Snow Ball Will Choose Monarchs

The crowning of a Snow King and Queen will climax the annual Snow Ball Dance, sponsored by the Senior Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y, to be held this Saturday night at 8:30 at the YMCA gymnasium. Candidates, shown above, were chosen by a committee from both groups on the basis of personality and friendliness, are all members of the senior class at Stroud Union High School.

Election will take place at the dance. Penny boxes will be placed beneath the names of the candidates and the dancers will vote for their favorite by dropping their pennies in the corresponding boxes. At the end of the dance the boy and girl with the most money in their box will become King and Queen, while the runners-up will become prince and princess. They will be presented with gifts donated by the town merchants.

All young people in the area are invited to attend the dance. An orchestra will provide the music and tickets will be on sale at the door.

Mental Health Official Stresses Responsibilities

Finances, personnel and public attitude are three things that stand in the way of consolidating and making even more effective the progress of the last few years in the field of mental health, Mrs. Norma Jacobs, administrative assistant of the Pennsylvania Mental Health Assn., said yesterday.

Mrs. Jacobs was the speaker at the open meeting of the Monroe Council of Republican Women held at the Penn-Stroud Hotel with a large attendance. Her appearance here was arranged by the Monroe County Mental Health Assn.

The state allowance for care of the mentally ill is limited to $4 a day per person, compared to the private hospital charge of $20 a day. The state Mental Health Assn. recommended an appropriation of 167 million dollars, but it was cut to $142,000 which is not enough to cover the increased cost of living expenses.

More patients are being released than ever before, she said, and there is hope that the number of releases could reach 1,000 a year. That rate could be possible if there were one psychiatrist for every 100 patients, she said.

Although Pennsylvania has six Medical Colleges, many of its graduates are going to other states because Pennsylvania cannot afford to keep them here.

The public, in addition to their responsibility for adequate finances also has a responsibility to provide jobs for those released from mental hospitals, and every community should accept those released without prejudice, she said.

Mrs. Jacobs also said that there was an urgent need for 300 additional beds for seriously disturbed children in the state.

She urged letters to legislators voicing support for an increased mental health program. Mrs. James Kitson, presiding at the meeting, gave a tribute to Abraham Lincoln. The tea table was also decorated in honor of his birthday with patriotic colors in the cake and centerpiece. Mrs. B. K. Williams was

Just Between Us — —

If only things would come out even. There's either part of a roll or part of a pat of butter left over on the plate. The thread runs out just before you reach the end of a seam.

When you're young you can't afford the time or money to do the things you want to do. When you're old, you don't want to do them anymore.

Thin people run out of appetite before they reach the dessert but fat people never do.

The more active a woman is in community affairs, the more she is asked to do; while nobody knows about the woman who would just love to do something different than housework for a change.

Moreover, I still have no water at all at my house while Mrs. Irving B. Kiffin has been bailing out her cellar all week.

Well, it makes for a very interesting — if irritating — world, and I doubt if we could manage to do much better.

And there's one thing coming out even — the space and my ideas both run out at the same time today.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Steward Holland

(Lucky)

Miss Patricia Getz Bride Of Roy S. Holland Sat.

Miss Patricia Ann Getz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd J. Getz of 521 Oak St., East Stroudsburg, became the bride of Roy Steward Holland Jr., son of Roy S. Holland Sr. of Delaware Water Gap, and Mrs. Ida Bishop Holland of East Stroudsburg.

They were married on Saturday at 2 p.m. before the candlelit altar of Grace Ev. Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg by Rev. William F. Wunder. Mrs. John J. Pentz Jr., sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly" prior to the ceremony and "The Lord's Prayer" during the wedding prayers. Mrs. Ralph Bender Jr. was organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of embroidered nylon tulle over taffeta, fashioned with a high neckline, short sleeves with matching gauntlets and a bouffant bodice. The bouffant skirt fell in four scalloped tiers of embroidered nylon tulle. Her fingertip veil of imported silk illusion was held by a lace cap trimmed with pearls and sequins. She carried a white Bible with an orchid.

Mrs. June Messerle, sister of the bride, as matron of honor wore a gown of crimson glow nylon chiffon with a matching headpiece and carried a cascade of yellow carnations. Mrs. Myrtle Kane, sister of the bride and Mrs. Joyce Flynn, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. The altar was decorated with bouquets of white chrysanthemums and snapdragons, and the family pews were marked with white carnations and white satin bows. A white aisle runner reached from altar to Narthex and the couple knelt on a white satin pillow during the wedding prayers.

The bride's mother wore a black and white crepe dress with red accessories and a corsage of red carnations.

A reception was held at Lily Pond Lodge, Saylorsburg for 100 guests. John Vogt, Harold Pugh and Richard Cramer furnished music and entertainment for the dancing at the reception.

A three-tiered wedding cake was served with other refreshments.

The Wyckoff Shopper

AB Wyckoff

About a week ago Mr. Wyckoff spoke over the store's amplifying system, extending two invitations — the first to attend a showing of the Knights of Columbus movie, "The Miracle of Marcelino" at the Sherman Theatre as his guest (he had purchased 50 tickets), and the second, to hear Dr. Madeline Powers, of State Teachers College, talk on Japan and show pictures from her recent visit, at First Presbyterian Church on Thursday night, February 20th. I have already taken advantage of the first... and I certainly hope to attend the latter, even though it will mean stealing away early from my usual Business and Professional Women's meeting.

The motion picture about Marcelino was a delightful, memorable experience, and I am grateful to my boss for making it possible to attend. The extent to which the story is believable, is, of course, the extent to which one has faith. Whether it is legend or truth, it is heartwarming and inspiring... a delightful change of pace from the TV westerns and gangster films.

Even the most irreligious person would come away from Marcelino, I am sure, charmed with the wondrously beautiful little boy who played the title role of the founding, reared in a monastery by Franciscan monks. This prankish youngster, beloved by his benefactors, and yearning for the mother whom he never knew, found solace in stealing bits of food and carrying them to the Man on the Cross in the church belfry. Symbolically, this food was bread... and wine.

Did Christ come down from the Cross to accept these offerings of love? Marcelino was sure that He did. And who can say He did not? There isn't a Christian anywhere who, in his prayers, has not at one time or another felt the nearness, and consoling compassion, of Christ. If we cannot believe in miracles... if we dare not hope that eternal love, understanding, and, finally, redemption are possible, there is really nothing else in which to believe... or worth the effort.

it's the TRUTH!

Shredded Bark Good For Seeds

SHREDDED BARK: How good is shredded tree bark for starting seeds indoors?

That's a question many of our friends are asking. A firm sent us a bag of bark for seed testing purposes and we find it does a good job starting seeds.

I don't think it is any more advantageous to use than milled sphagnum moss, vermiculite, muck or sand and peat mixture, but it is different from other mediums for seed starting and you may like to try it this Spring.

Shredded bark is free from damping-off disease, insect pests and it's simple to use. It holds moisture wonderfully, after you once soak it. The bark can be used over again.

Orchid growers who formerly used Osmunda fibre have almost completely given up this material in place of shredded bark for growing pot orchids. Orchid seedlings are grown in the fine bark. It comes in three grades: fine, coarse and medium.

The fine grade is best for starting seeds, although we've used the medium grade for sowing good-sized seeds such as zinnias, calendula, tomatoes, etc.

You can fill a seed flat with the bark and sow seed in this, or you can use a seed flat partly filled with soil. The bark (about one-half inch in thickness) can be applied on top of this, and seed is sown into it. Or you can use flower pots containing the bark.

Shredded bark comes to you dry as a bone so you should saturate it thoroughly before sowing.

A point to keep in mind is that the bark will not grow for long seedlings an inch or so high (it's low in nitrogen, has fair amounts of potash and phosphate). So to prevent poor spindly plants we feed it a liquid plant food as soon as the seedlings develop their first true leaves. We use a teaspoon of a liquid plant food to two quarts of water and feed the bark and seedlings once before transplanting.

Begonia Notes: Having trouble growing begonias indoors? Do young shoots rot off at the base, or leaves turn brown and drop?

Rotting near the roots is a trouble associated with too much water. Most begonias prefer a soil mixture of leaf-mold, sand and loam, and most of the flowering sorts prefer a rather sunny window. The others do well in a shaded window.

Poor drainage will result in a soggy soil and the shoots will start to rot. Rex begonias like an even temperature. It can be anywhere from 50 to 70 degrees, but shouldn't fluctuate otherwise the plant tends to go semi-dormant.

Lack of humidity may cause young leaves to turn brown and die. Also, roots may be affected with nematodes. Usually brown spots on the leaf are an indication of nematode injury. The only control is to pick them off and burn.

All begonias should be cut back at intervals so they won't be tall and ungainly. Pinch out the tips and give your friends a slip.

Sunbury Man Found Guilty

SUNBURY, Feb. 12 (AP)—A Sunbury man, showing little emotion, was convicted yesterday of second-degree murder in the fatal shooting of a Carlisle woman.

A jury of eight men and four women deliberated less than two hours before finding Bruce R. Fortner, 58, guilty in the death of Mrs. Fern D. Buchan, 42, last Sept. 1.

Question Box

V. B. of Bartonsville: "Last Summer and Fall we had some beautiful cannas. The tubers were taken up after the first hard frost and put in the basement. Please tell me how to start the tubers again. Should they be potted now or planted outdoors direct?"

There are two ways to handle canna bulbs. They can be planted directly outdoors or you can pot them up for later planting. You can start them indoors in 4 inch pots any time now. Use a mixture of peat and loam. Water sparingly until growth has started, and then you can give plenty of water.

If you want to divide your roots, take a sharp knife and cut each division so that there's at least one good eye on each piece. Dust with Captan or sulfur. After the plants have grown indoors you can set them out when frost danger is over, spacing about 18 inches apart. Cannas like full sun and plenty of nourishment, especially phosphoric acid. Too much nitrogen and lack of sunshine will cause the leaves to grow large, but flowers will be small and poorly developed. Give them plenty of water in dry spells.

R. L. of East Stroudsburg: "I have a privet hedge (50 plants) and I'd like to move it to the other side of my yard. It's four feet tall and 7 years old. When and how is the best time to move it?"

This spring is a good time. Dig a trench 10 inches deep. Then dig up the old plants and set them in the trench, about a foot apart (it's not necessary to zig-zag or stagger them) in a straight row. Cover the roots with 3 or 4 inches of earth. Water the trench thoroughly using a garden hose. Then you can put the rest of the soil back into the trench. Never mound the soil up around the plants as this sheds rain water away from the plants.

Your next step is to cut the plants back to about 1 foot, so that they'll take root and make growth faster. This also enables new growth to come out at the top and sides, causing bushier and thicker plants. It makes no difference where you cut the plants back (in relation to buds). Some folks don't cut the privet when planting, but actually it helps the plants get a quicker start and it gives you a tighter hedge. Privet has fibrous roots and they dig up readily. Just take a shovel (round-pointed) and sink it down beneath the roots and lift up. Try to get as many roots as possible.

USE NEW MERCHANTS
PARKING LOT S. 6th ST.

A BASEBALL clinic for the youth of Monroe County will be held sometime in the Spring. It was announced by Jerry Stulgaitis, head baseball coach at Stroudsburg High.

Stulgaitis plans to bring in a top diamond luminary to head the classes which will be held at Stroudsburg High or if the weather is good, Gordon Giffels Field.

Little League players, Babe Ruth circuit aspirants, schoolboys from the sixth grade up will be invited to attend the planned all-day session.

Besides the head man giving out with educational diamond advice, Stulgaitis will use high school coaches as aids in the various phases of the sport.

Stulgaitis feels that a project of this kind will be most helpful to the youth of the area. We second the former Little All-American's suggestion.

Wally Ludwig, the football coach who got Northampton High started on its winning ways, has a son who was an All-State halfback in Michigan this past fall.

Ludwig who used to match wits with T. Manning (Cap) Curtis when the present Stroudsburg High athletic director was coaching football, is screening hundreds of offers for his boy—6-foot, 4-inch Wally Jr.

The lad a one-man team for Ste. St. Marie, Michigan High, is leaning toward the University of Michigan. However, Ivy League schools are still hoping the boy—a very good student—will cast his lot in their direction.

In case anyone hasn't looked at the records recently, Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg High's court machines are playing as well as anybody the past two weeks.

The Mountaineers of John Kupice have won three out of their last four, while the Cavaliers of Doug Schoonover have notched two out of their last quartet of games. One of the East-burgers' losses in this current two week swing was a one-point overtimer to Pen Argyl.

During the second half chases, things are looking up for both the Cavaliers and Mountaineers. While no one is looking for either to cop the flag chasers in the Lehigh-Northampton or Lehigh Valley leagues, it is certain that the two local fives will have a big say in who is going to win the second half diadems in the schoolboy loops.

Some people are superstitious about having their pictures taken before any game. Not so, in the case of Jim Kindred and Dale Metzgar, East Stroudsburg High's court stars.

Jim and Dale, and Joe Dulik of Hellertown High obliged the Daily Record's photographer Rod MacLeod, the other night, and posed prior to the Panthers-East Stroudsburg tilt.

What happened, Jim went out and canned 35 and Dale responded with 23.

This also would serve as cannon fodder for the advocates of "publicity doesn't really hurt schoolboys." At least in the case of Kindred and Metzgar it didn't bother their shooting eyes that night against Hellertown.

Mann your posts! Beaver trapping season opens legally Saturday at 7 a.m. The season closes noon Saturday, March 15.

To keep within the law, Beavers may be caught only by the trapping method. Non-residents are not allowed to harvest these furbearers in the State of Pennsylvania.

A person may set, tend or operate 10 traps only. All traps must be tagged with name tags which must show above the ice or water line to permit easy inspection.

Traps may not be set on the structure of any beaver dam or house, or within 25 feet of the water line or structure of either. No trappers are permitted on Commission posted dams. Each individual is allowed four beavers in '58.

Monroe, Carbon and Pike are among those counties awaiting opening the season Saturday.

25 Per Cent Unsigned On Major League Clubs

TWENTY-FIVE per cent of the players on Major League baseball rosters, including National League home run king Hank Aaron, World Series hero Lew Burdette and New York Yankee star Mickey Mantle, have yet to sign contracts for the 1958 season.

This was shown today in an Associated Press survey. The actual total of unsigned players is 158. The Boston Red Sox lead the pack with 19 followed by Milwaukee's champion Braves with 18.

Among the other standout players not in the fold are Roy Sievers of Washington, Billy Pierce of the Chicago White Sox, Harvey Kuenn of Detroit, Minnie Minoso of Cleveland, Whitey Ford and Bill Skowron of the Yankees, Ed Bailey and Brooks Lawrence of Cincinnati, Johnny Antonelli of the San Francisco Giants and Ed Mathews of the Braves.

Except for the St. Louis Cardinals, who have signed all their players, each club will have to do a lot of contract negotiating between now and the March 1 official start of spring training. Some will probably have to go beyond that date.

The Tigers still have not satisfied 15 players and the Yankees 14. Philadelphia, Baltimore, Kansas City and Washington are next with 12 each. Then come the Pittsburgh Pirates, 10, Chicago White Sox, 9; Cincinnati, 8; Cleveland, 6; San Francisco, 5; Los Angeles, 4 and the Chicago Cubs, only 2.

Sievers, Aaron and Antonelli are among those who have publicly announced dissatisfaction with the contracts offered them.

Sievers, the American League home run leader, has asked that his salary be doubled. He received around $19,000 last season and Washington President Cal Griffith reportedly has offered no more than $30,000.

Aaron, who had 44 homers and 114 runs batted in coupled with a .322 batting average, batted in 320 runs in 1957. His most recent comment was "the Braves and I are far apart."

Antonelli, an 18-game loser, is looking a sizable cut. He received an estimated $35,000 last year.

Mantle, who won the American League's Most Valuable Player award for the second straight season, has had one salary talk with the Yankees' front office. He received about $60,000 in 1957 and is believed to be asking $75,000.

Burdette has been too busy on the winter banquet circuit to say much about his contract. He is reportedly asking for a $10,000 boost to $45,000.

Black, Nagle, Snyder Tab Warrior Ists

PHILADELPHIA — LaSalle's swimming might lived up to advanced notices here last night as the highly regarded Explorers defeated East Stroudsburg Teachers, 58-27, in a dual meet in LaSalle's pool.

Despite firsts by Jed Black in the diving event, and co-captains Minor Nagle and Roy Snyder in the 100-yard freestyle and 200-yard butterfly, the Warriors went down to their second straight loss.

LaSalle, which saw a 39-meet win streak go by the boards at the start of the season, chalked up its third straight and sixth win in seven outings.

Lions, Record Will Help Defray Court Clinic Bills

THE MONROE County Scholastic Basketball Clinic, scheduled for Stroudsburg High's gymnasium, Saturday, Feb. 22, is picking up supporters along the way.

Yesterday the Lions Club of the Stroudsburgs, and the Daily Record donated $10 each to help defray the expense of the all-day affair which will be attended by every schoolboy in the county — fifth grade through high school.

T. Manning (Cap) Curtis, founder of the project, hopes to pack every square inch of the Mountaineers' gymnasium. "We've got the space here to accommodate 1500 or more boys and if needed, we can squeeze in a few more," the Stroudsburg High athletic director said.

Bee Instructor
Clair Bee, the basketball coach who led Rider College and Long Island University to their greatest heights on the court, will be the guest instructor. Bee will use high school players in demonstrating the fundamentals and plays to "winning basketball."

Curtis announced last night that other service organizations are showing interest in the clinic and will probably help with cash offers to insure the success of the first annual event.

"If the interest is shown in this first one, there will be more," Curtis said.

Others Invited
"At first we thought that we would limit the clinic to just the schoolboys of Monroe County. But after conferences with basketball fans and school administrators we've decided to invite representatives—students—of every school in the Lehigh-Northampton and Lehigh Valley leagues to attend," he emphasized.

Curtis said that the clinic will open at 10 a.m. and run through to 12 noon. In the afternoon sessions will be held from 1 to 3 p.m.

Curtis urged clinic-goers to bring box lunches. He also noted that the Stroudsburg High cafeteria will be available for persons wishing hot dogs, milk and soda.

STC Will Host Millersville Five

THE CREAM of Pennsylvania State Teachers Conference basketball circles invades East Stroudsburg Teachers' gymnasium today.

Moving in for an important conference struggle is Millersville STC, perennial champions of the 14-school teachers loop.

The Warriors of Dick Luce and the Marauders of suburban Lancaster clash in the "Hill" gymnasium, starting at 8:30 p.m.

A preliminary game between Gray's Chevrolet and the unbeaten ESSTC junior varsity will open up the court twill at 7 p.m.

Millersville, sporting one of the best records of small colleges in the East and an aspirant to the National Intercollegiate Athletic Association's basketball tournament in March, is unbeaten in STC circles this season.

East Stroudsburg is 2-2 in the PTC and 6-4 on the season.

Back On Win Trail
Luce charges, after a two-game losing streak, resumed its winning ways Tuesday, besting a better-than-average Paterson STC five.

The Warriors are likely to start Charley German, Dewey Trautman, John Krysa, Steve Oliveri and Karl Weigner. Almost sure to see duty are Charley Stouffer, Mike Sentelek and Howie Case.

Millersville is built around high-scoring Don Bishop who has taken up the slack left by the graduation of the PTC's top point-getter for four years — John Parker.

Critical Tilt
The game will be a crucial contest runoff for both schools. A Pocono win, if the Tannersville five gets by Tobyhanna tomorrow night, will clinch the Monroe Scholastic League crown for Harry Werkheiser's defending champs. A Barrett victory Tuesday, if Pocono and Barrett wins tomorrow, will throw both teams in first place.

In the event of a tie, a third game, actually a regular Barrett home tilt, will be played at a later date.

Kist To Speak At Scout Fete

JACK KIST, East Stroudsburg football and baseball coach, will be the principal speaker at the Boy Scout Troop 97 Father-Son Banquet in the East Stroudsburg Grace Lutheran Church social room today.

Kist also will show films of the East Stroudsburg High-Stroudsburg Thanksgiving Day football classic.

A venison supper, starting at 6:30 p.m. will start off the night's program.

Virginia Names Voris Grid Coach

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Feb. 12 (AP)—The University of Virginia switched from the Navy to the Army today in naming its ninth head football coach.

He is Dick Voris, 36, an assistant to Earl Blaik at West Point since 1955.

Voris got a three-year contract at a salary that was not disclosed but reported to be in excess of $10,000 a year. He succeeds Ben Martin, who resigned last month to become head coach at the Air Force Academy.

Gonzales Rips Hoad

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 (AP)—Pancho Gonzales smashed the teeth from young Lew Hoad's tennis game with sledgehammer power tonight and crushed the young Australian 7-9, 6-0, 6-4, 6-4 before 15,237 at Madison Square Garden. It was the largest crowd ever to see a pro tennis match in the United States.

Berry, Watts Team Up

In Mixed 4-some Upset

JUPITER, Fla., Feb. 12 (AP)—Nan Berry's sparkling putting performance brought today's biggest upset as she and Billy Watts of Fort Lauderdale teamed to defeat Barbara McIntire and Dick Chapman 3 and 2 in the second round of the National Mixed Foursomes golf tournament.

The Quincy, Ill., golfer sank three 30 foot putts. Her prowess coupled with Watts' strong iron shots gave the two the victory on the 16th hole.

A Bad Temper Can Be Costly

MOST BOWLING stars have learned through experience that you can't control your bowling ball well if you can't control your temper.

I've seen plenty of league games lost, and several titles as well, because of untimely mental flare-ups. One flare-up was particularly painful. It cost our team the American Bowling Congress championship by eight pins when our lead-off man, in the all-important 10th frame of the final game, was upset by a bowler on an opposite alley who failed to concede the right-of-way. Our man got a three-pin result with the first ball, three more with the second ball.

Adjust Yourself

Learn immediately to take things in stride. Don't squawk about the runways, alleys, pins or bum breaks, as the fluster fellow in the sketch is doing. Adjust yourself to conditions, whatever they are, as others must do.

Of course you'll lose hits that looked like sure-fire strikes. But don't blame the pins. Changes are your footwork was off a bit or your angle, or your speed. A miss, remember, means bad control.

Forget that split, that error, or that lost hit. Forget that whole frame, in fact, and concentrate on the next one. You'll be a far better bowler if you do.

'Mudders' Ready For Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 12 (AP)—The Texas Open, oldest golf tournament on the winter tour, shoves off tomorrow with the best mudders obviously having the advantage. But picking the best mudders was as difficult as establishing a favorite in a wide-open field.

Jay Hebert of Sanford, Fla., the defending champion, won the tournament in the rain. Mike Souchak, the ex-Duke footballer with the cannon shot, set some PGA records here in 1955 when he won.

Actually, the weather seldom handicaps any of the crack shots of the tournament trail materially.

Rain, sleet and snow faced the players in the qualifying round.

Egypt Accepts Large Loan

CAIRO, Feb. 12 (AP)—Egypt has accepted a 20-million-dollar loan from Communist East Germany in the form of machinery, factories and equipment, the newspaper Al Ahram reported today.

The Ministry of Industry declined to comment. Al Ahram said an Egyptian mission is proceeding to East Germany to discuss details.

December

Violence Mixes With Peace In Final Month

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the last in a series of 12 "Year End" stories to appear in The Daily Record. This series deals with the top local news stories of 1957 on the month by month basis.

By Leonard Randolph
IN DECEMBER Monroe County came, full circle, from the promise of material achievements to the strength and eternal beauty of Man's spirit. The year 1957 had been a year of many things. Goals had been set. Many of them had been met and won.

We were closer than ever before to such material dreams as the Thruway for the Stroudsburgs, the Keystone Shortway, the reconstruction of the railroad viaduct near Anahomink, a flood control project on the Brodheads.

None of these had been easily realized. And each of them was "something of value" to the people of Monroe County.

As the year drew to its close we touched once more on the key to Man's existence under God. In the restless, determined melee of the shopping season, men and women, their children and their children's children moved through crowds of love and compassion toward The Star.

If December ended with the placid peace and beauty of Christmas, its beginning was a prolonged note of horror left from another month; in New Brunswick, N.J., Neil R. Ellis was held for grand jury in the murder of Samuel Habit, his aging former employer. Ellis had killed Habit, he told police in an early confession, with a ball-peen hammer; brought his body to a barn near Shawnee and left it there. The barn had burned. There was some discrepancy in Ellis' story there; he denied setting fire to it; told police he must have dropped a cigarette. The full story of young Ellis was still to be told. Police were sure of one thing: Someone else would have to tell it; not Neil.

Political rumblings showed favorable winds for local boosters of William Z. Scott, Republican State senator from Lansford, Scott—who had been predicted by The Daily Record to be one of the leading contenders for GOP governor or lieutenant governor spots on the next ticket — showed up as just that.

While politicians declared open season on each other and their party's nominations, area hunters took to the field in their own open season on bucks. It opened on Dec. 2; and 33 hunters reported kills that day.

The season brought with it a sizable crop of tragedy as well as buck "kills." Dead in hunting accidents: Willard Bruder, 34, Philadelphia, shot by Thomas H. Steward Sr., 34, Frackville, who heard a noise in a fence row and fired, was later charged with "shooting a human in mistake for game"; Frank W. Thomas, 41, Skytop's veteran postmaster, shot by a member of his hunting party in a field not far from his home.

Up in Coolbaugh Township the results of a special census were released. It showed population there — with Tobyhanna's huge U.S. Signal Depot as the spark-plug — had tripled since 1940, doubled since 1950. How many now? 1,663 the census showed. Compared to 440 in 1940 and 820 seven short years before.

Municipal Authorities in Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg named members: Paul Dellaria was reappointed to the latter body; Millard Marsh was appointed to the former.

We had our first "major" snowfall of the season. At first it was estimated at three inches. Old timers snorted raucously when someone said it was a "big" snow. Not at all like the old days, they said, when we thought we didn't have any snow unless it was three feet in the front yard — not counting drifting.

A cold spell brought out topcoats, overcoats and mufflers. One man who came to town wearing an overcoat almost left without one. His name was J. C. Penney and he was the founder of the nationwide store chain which bears his name. He stopped in to address the Kiwanis Club. When his talk was over and he prepared to leave, he found that someone had taken his coat by mistake. Just as Penney was prepared to depart from Stroudsburg for Philadelphia the missing coat was found. George Graff, local man about town, took an awful lot of good-natured ribbing. He was the one who had the coat, it developed.

Running a kind of rough counterpoint to all we did during December was the nation's compulsive effort to get a ball of metal into space and win a second or third round in the cold war to conquer space. The Navy, which had been given complete control over satellite launching once, sent out the word that it was about to fire "Vanguard."

Next day the Navy said it wouldn't; something was wrong with the "Vanguard's" brain. Then there was this trouble with the weather. Then they tried and "Vanguard" fizzled, blew up on its launching pad. The Defense Department said it was going to launch a number of missiles during the coming week.

Meanwhile, back in the hills and dales, Monroe Countians spent substantial amounts of time searching the skies for the rocket of Sputnik Two. It was sighted by several residents during the month.

Police spent a few hours looking for two escaped youths who had been in Monroe County Jail early in the month. Both from Effort in the West End, the boys had been sentenced the day before to Camp Hill. Both were juveniles. When an attendant locked them in for the night he forgot to put a pin-bolt in place. The boys got out.

Their escape was discovered by Deputy Paul Albertson after his wife felt the cold air from the open side door. Also missing: a rifle and a box of ammo from the second-floor apartment at the jail. The boys were captured, without violence or resistance, a couple of hours later by State police.

Calvin Frantz, 50, of Stroudsburg RD3 (Bartonsville) was sentenced to a year in county jail and ordered to pay a $200 fine. Frantz had pleaded guilty to a charge of "aggravated assault and battery" in the Aug. 25 shooting of his son. The boy was injured in the right leg with pellets from a shotgun fired by his father.

Monroe County Civil Defense made news twice during the month: When Paul Crown announced his resignation as deputy director; and, later in the month, when CD released a report that it was about ready to embark on the CD Council system, abandoning the single control administration it had used previously.

Visiting Nurse Association of Monroe County had a new home. It is located across from the General Hospital on Brown St. in a house now owned by the Hospital. VNA celebrated its new quarters with a well-attended "open house."

Monroe County Commissioners conferred with officials of the Mount Pocono Airport Authority again during December and asked that they seek backing for the $16,000 added local contribution they want from townships and boroughs. Commissioners urged overall participation in the airport "because the whole County stands to gain." The Authority said it would.

In mid-month Authority chairman R. LeRoy Dengerler sent letters asking for participation to all townships and boroughs. The days dragged on — and on — but nobody answered.

It was at this same meeting with Commissioners that Dengerler brought up the fact that a planning survey had once been conducted by a group he, himself, headed in the County. Dengerler asked if this survey — or a similar one to be conducted now, by local laymen who know the area — could not form the basis for County planning rather than spending a lot of money for an outside engineering firm, as advocated by the Monroe County Planning Commission. County Commissioners said they thought it could.

Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg Councils took up the matter of a public hearing on the proposed Thruway for the boroughs. They voted to ask the State Department of Highways to set a date as soon as possible. The Department responded within a week; set Jan. 14 as the date.

Similar action by the two councils in the Thruway matter was right in tempo with a recommendation passed along by planning expert Dr. Harold Alderfer, Harrisburg. Alderfer addressed the Chamber of Commerce, urged joint planning by the two boroughs in such matters as water, sewage and municipal facilities.

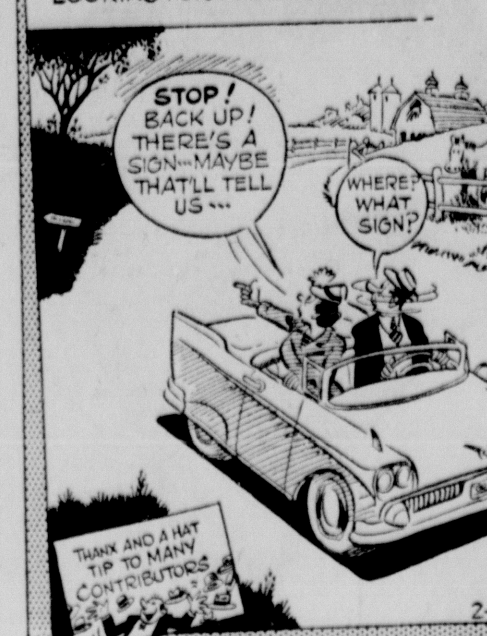

In Stroudsburg, the Businessmen's Assn. leased the parking lot formerly occupied by American Stores off Sixth and Main for the pre-Christmas shopping season. In Harrisburg the Public Utilities Commission approved legal matters leading up to appropriation of 32 tracts of land in Stroud Township. The land was needed to reconstruct the viaduct over Lackawanna tracks and the Brodheads near Anahomink. It was wiped out in 1955.

There was heartening news on two fronts — cultural and industrial. Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority in Harrisburg approved a $210,000 loan to Monroe County Industries Inc. for development of new industry in this area. In Bushkill, Capt. Harold Auten, resort owner and Summer theater producer announced plans for a Bushkill Academy of Performing Arts to begin in June, 1958.

Fire damaged the former Cherry Valley Lodge near the Ronson plant in Delaware Water Gap. The building was being used by Ronson for storage. Former State Senator M. F. Crowe was named president of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce during the month.

Settlement of suits growing out of the deaths of five East Stroudsburg State Teachers College students in January, 1957 was announced. Greyhound Bus Lines agreed to pay a total DAILY RECORD READERS are invited to select the 10 leading stories occurring in Monroe County during 1957.

Was it the Thruway, Shortway, Mount Pocono Airport, train derailment in East Stroudsburg, the accident in which five college students were killed, the holding of a Kellersville family as hostage by three escaped convicts or the November election? Maybe we haven't even touched on the most widely read story—you tell us.

of $150,000 to the families of the five boys. All were killed when a Greyhound bus collided with their car on Effort mountain during bad weather.

An East Stroudsburg man, Lt. Kenneth L. Munch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Munch, 73 Anahomink, was credited with heroism in safely bringing a giant C-124 Globemaster plane down at Boston's Logan International Airport. The plane had lost one engine; another was partly out. For Munch it was the third time in six weeks that he had saved a plane — and his men.

Visiting State officials in Harrisburg a local delegation pledged full support for the proposed $3 million Brodheads-McMichael Creek flood control project. But a snag developed when a local utility company said it could not pay cost of relocating its lines to make way for flood control. Borough said they couldn't shoulder the cost, either, without a bond issue. The future for flood control hung in the balance in late December.

More disturbing than this, to most people who remembered the bleak days of 1955, was the complacency some residents showed toward the whole idea of flood control. It could never happen again, they seemed to be saying.

Then came Dec. 20. It was almost like an answer to the stand-pat attitude. There was a 12-hour rainfall, first. Then, with an almost mechanical precision, the streams began to rise. Backwater flooded low regions in Stroudsburg, but did not damage property. An earth-fill detour on Ann St. across Pocono Creek was destroyed.

Highway Department officials surveyed damage to roads in this area and in Tannersville; estimated total destruction at $95,000 or more. It had been a heavy rain, yes. But less than a fourth as much rain had fallen as during August 18-19, two years before.

The rampaging streams formed the basis for one of December's top "spot news" stories. The other came when a Beechcraft A13, twin-engine Navy plane crashed and burned on Blue Mountain a mile and a half north-west of Wind Gap. Two men — Commander R. B. Dalton and Lt. Cmdr. G. H. Webster — were killed in the crash. Daily Record reporter Don Allen and photographer Rod MacLeod covered the story for us; scored a clean beat over other newspapers on details of the accident and identification of the dead.

Burgesses Ed Doran, Stroudsburg and Jesse S. Flory, East Stroudsburg made both news and history during December. They were "sworn in" to office in a joint ceremony by President Judge Fred W. Davis in Monroe County Court.

General Hospital of Monroe County made some history of its own — or rather let it be made. The Hospital announced that, between Jan. 1 and Dec. 31, 1957, a total of 943 babies had been born there. It was a brand-new record for the hospital's maternity wards — 42 babies more than the previous record year (1955) and 112 higher than the total for 1956.

The thoughts of most people in Monroe County turned to the birth of a Child of another country, in an equally restless and disturbing time. The post-Sputnik era could not obscure the simple Truth of God's love for Man.

In this design, we tried to find some meaning in the oldest parts of human life.

A special photograph, conceived and executed by Rod MacLeod illustrated the new confusion of our age: A Sputnik sputtered through space, half in darkness, while an enormous Star of Bethlehem girdled the world in its light.

And, in an accompanying story, we tried to see the image of Christ in each man who lives and dies, in a child laughing or crying, in a bright day coming alive or a dark night dying.

For December — or for any other month of any year — it did not seem that there were many lessons greater than this: A year was ending — but its meaning was still there, in all the quiet places — and in the Crowd.

Your Horoscope Today

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Thursday, February 13, 1958

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Think with form and spirit; plan what you say, even those short, seemingly everyday remarks. You will soon be a far better conversationalist and thinker. Improve today — you can!

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — When we waste time or energy, we always pay for it—in lost advantages as well as in having to crowd later and not be truly free to enjoy leisure time. The day's good aspects urge vim.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Build this period into the bright, hopeful one it can be with your ingenuity and lively spirit. Don't hesitate when confronted with opposition, accept it for the worth that is in it. Systematize.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Going to excellent opportunities, you should take all possible precautions not to overlook small gains, benefits and any efficient suggestions. If no principle is harmed.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — You can do more with this type of day than you think if you use ably your God-given abilities, curtail annoyance at others' ways and overcome a likely fear of criticism.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — A step forward, no matter how small, is commendable. Those many "little" good advances can build a happy, progressive life. Some new methods, devices and items for your personal.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Don't slacken a good pace, if you have one. If you do not, then turn to quickly and assume the sturdy, stimulating tempo Libra does so well. Just don't overindulge anything.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Ask and you shall receive quicker, and asking with a smile always gets better results fast. This day need your top instincts, some initiative and creativeness, AND logic.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — With the fine aspects converging from various directions, you may make a big day out of this one in a lasting, healthy way for personal interest, family strength and otherwise.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Watch that you don't override others' opinions or wishes. Rightful obligations must come first, then outside interests.

You BORN TODAY are calm, dignified, and respect others' rights. In excitement, you can be depended upon for chores done quietly, can take rebuffs without counter-charges. Don't let your nature become subservient. Reverse is commendable, but you must strive also for your own niche, fulfilling your interests, gaining your own laurels, and giving more time to your affairs than to the many other demands made upon you. Music, dancing, children, travel, decorating, revival, is in your field. Pray daily for steady ambition, faith in your birthdate — Abraham Lincoln; self and never let good habits slip. George Meredith, novelist.
